In the early hours of Tuesday morning, Pierre Stambul and his partner were violently awoken by police at their home in the French port city of Marseille.

"It was a bad moment because the cops came in my home very, very violently," Stambul, co-president of the French Jewish Union for Peace (Union Juive Française pour la Paix - UFJP), told The Electronic Intifada. "They broke the doors to enter. I was handcuffed for one hour and spent seven hours in jail."
